Numismatists' Professional Opinion

from the Numismatic Professionals at the Academy of Coins[©]

6/24/2021

Glenn Ribble:

Thank you for submitting your coin to PriceThatCoin.com.

We examined your photographs. In our professional opinion, the coin pictured is:

#1. An authentic, damaged 1943-D Lincoln Wheat Cent, Bold DDO.

#2. Your photographs (rated 5 / 10) are sufficient for determining grade and authenticity. Although it's difficult to ascertain condition from these photographs ('43 Cents are particularly tricky), your photographs are sufficient to determine some important information.

#3. Current Market Value (6/23/2021)

This coin has a current market value of $25+. This is a tricky coin to value, based on these photographs. Although damaged, if it grades high enough (impossible to tell from the images, unfortunately), it may be worth having certified in a Details slab. It appears to be a bold DDO variety, however a grader will be able to verify with certainty once they have it in-hand better than we can from images.
