Numismatists' Professional Opinion

from the Numismatic Professionals at the Academy of Coins[©]

1/4/2022

Matthew Bradley:

Thank you for submitting your coin to PriceThatCoin.com.

We examined your photographs. In our professional opinion, the coin pictured is:

#1. An authentic 1969-S Lincoln Memorial Cent.

#2. Your photographs (rated 5 / 10) are sufficient for determining grade and authenticity. Although it's difficult to ascertain condition from these photographs, these images are sufficient to determine some important information.

#3. Current Market Value (1/4/2022)

This coin has a current market value of $0.01. Some people submit '69-S in hopes that their coin is a DDO. (Not saying this is you.) There may be some minor machine or strike doubling, but this coin is not a doubled-die obverse variety. After a careful review of both obverse and reverse, this does not appear to be any other valuable '69-S variety, either. (The scratch between the 6 and 9 has been noted). Last, though the coin's surfaces exhibit mint luster, it's condition is difficult to ascertain from the lighting in these photographs, and it does not appear to be in sufficient premium condition to demand a collectors' premium price.
