Numismatists' Professional Opinion

from the Numismatic Professionals at the Academy of Coins®

5/26/2019

Timothy Johnson:

Thank you for submitting your coin to PriceThatCoin.com.

We examined your photographs. In our professional opinion, the coin pictured is:

#1. An authentic 1997-D Washington Quarter.

#2. This appears to be a problem coin. Your photographs (rated 5 / 10, 10 perfect, 1 poor) are sufficient for determining grade and authenticity. This is clearly not an error coin; this is clearly a coin with post-mint damage. There is no minting error that could produce this result.

#3. Current Market Value (5/26/2019)

This coin has a value of $0.25 at most. It's entirely possible that a vendor would not accept this coin because of the extent of the damage. As numismatic professionals, it's clear to us that the coin is authentic and heavily damaged, but others who do not coins may not understand what they're looking at.
